

Connectivity between women employment and domestic violence in Quetta

Ejaz Naeem<sup>1</sup>, Prof. Dr. Muhammad Alam Tareen<sup>2</sup> &
Zahoor Ahmed Lehri<sup>3</sup>

Social Sciences

Abstract

Gender inequality has plagued the third world as a whole where the underdeveloped and the developing countries of the world have striven to improve the status of women among the male dominated societies; however, domestic violence still remains a huge problem to tackle. Pakistan among the countries where women empowerment is in progress, yet in the major cities like Quetta (which is also case study of the research) have witnessed large scale of domestic violence. The magnitude of domestic violence is directed toward the working women. The interrelationship between domestic violence and those women, married or unmarried, working either in the government sector or the private sector is discussed. The given study explores the connectivity between women employment and domestic violence in the city of Quetta.

Keywords: Domestic violence, Quetta, women, employment, Pakistan, interrelationship, gender equality